HUMAN NATURE: THE CATEGORIAL PRINCIPLES

P. M. S. Hacker
(To be published by Blackwell, 2007)

Chapter 1 – THE PROJECT

1. Human nature
2. Philosophical anthropology
3. Grammatical investigation
4. Philosophical investigation
5. Philosophy and ‘mere words’
6. A challenge to the autonomy of the philosophical enterprise: Quine
7. The Platonic and the Aristotelian traditions in philosophical anthropology

Chapter 2 – SUBSTANCE

1. Substances: things
2. Substances: stuffs
3. Substance-referring expressions
4. Conceptual connections between things and stuffs
5. Substances and their substantial parts
6. Substances conceived as natural kinds
7. Substances conceived as kinds
8. Misconceptions of the category of substance: a historical overview

Chapter 3 – CAUSATION

1. Causation: Humean, neo-Humean and anti-Humean
2. On causal necessity
3. Event-causation is not a prototype
4. The inadequacy of Hume’s analysis: observability, spatio-temporal relations, and regularity
5. The flaw in the early modern debate
6. Agent-causation as prototype
7. Agent-causation is only a prototype
8. Event-causation and other centres of variation
9. Overview

Chapter 4 – POWERS

1. Possibility
2. Inanimate powers
3. Active and passive inanimate powers
4. Power and its actualization
5. Power and its vehicle
6. First- and second-order powers; loss of power
7. Human powers: basic distinctions
   i. one-way and two-way powers
   ii. abilities
   iii. being able to and knowing how to
   iv. innate and acquired abilities
   v. first- and second-order abilities
8. Human powers: further distinctions
   i. human active and passive powers
      a. the passions
b. sensibility
c. susceptibilities and liabilities of health
   ii. The vehicles of human powers
   iii. ability and opportunity
9. Dispositions

Chapter 5 – AGENCY

1. Inanimate agents
2. Animate agents: needs and wants
3. Volitional agency: preliminaries
4. Doings, acts and actions
5. Human agency and action
6. Human agency: a historical overview
7. Human agency: causation of movement?

Chapter 6 – TELEOLOGY AND TELEOLOGICAL EXPLANATION

1. Teleology and purpose
2. What things have a purpose
3. Purpose and axiology
4. The beneficial
5. Teleology and causality: a historical overview

Chapter 7 – REASONS, CAUSES, AND RATIONAL EXPLANATION

1. Rationality and reasonableness
2. Reasoning and reasons
3. Explaining human behaviour
4. Explanation in terms of agential reasons
5. Causal mythologies

Chapter 8 – THE MIND
1. Homo loquens
2. The Cartesian mind
3. The mind

Chapter 9 – THE SELF AND THE BODY
1. The emergence of the philosophers’ self
2. The illusions of the philosophers’ self
3. The body
4. The relationship between human beings and their bodies

Chapter 10 – THE PERSON
1. The emergence of the concept
2. An unholy trinity – Descartes, Locke and Hume
3. Changing bodies and switching brains – puzzle cases and red-herrings
4. The concept of a person

Index